Press Release – Road Safety Measures

April 4th, 2014

The National Roads Authority (NRA) in conjunction with the Ministry of PLAH&I have been working on multiple ways to help make our roads safer for the benefit of the entire Cayman community.

Just this past January 2014 the iRAP (International Road Assessment Programme) was launched to help us identify sections of roadway that are by engineering standards potentially unsafe. Safety countermeasures currently being tested by the NRA include transverse rumble strips and more recently anti-skid coating at some crosswalks and major roundabouts.

Both the transverse rumble strips and the anti-skid coating are internationally proven methods of reducing road collisions. They are especially effective where loss of friction results when rain, oil and other lubricants are deposited on the roadways.

While the NRA continues to review solutions to improve road safety, it encourages all road users to remain alert to their surroundings and road conditions, follow posted speed limits and obey the rules of the road.
